

Porsche 991 Engine Stumble Questionnaire

Dear fellow 991 owners,

This questionnaire is to help all of us get more information about the engine stumble that you may/may not be experiencing but that may develop in ANY of our cars. Your input here will help pinpoint whether this issue is caused by specific systems, specific years, specific models, or whether it's all stemming from the engine. My recommendation is print this questionnaire and spend 20 minutes in your vehicle answering these questions. Even if you don't have this problem, your input is vital! I will shred all surveys once I've input the data into a database and share the results.

Definition of the engine stumble: When accelerating (moderate load) in 2nd and 3rd gear, you feel a very obvious shudder @2500 along with a very brief lunge as the power loss occurs for a split second, before returning. If you drive hard, the dead spot is not as noticeable. Sadly this is not an option with daily city driving
